PREFACE

This publication of Illinois state census schedules for 1820 is a companion work to the 1810 federal and 1818 territorial censuses published in another volume of the Illinois Historical Collections. The introduction to the earlier returns presents the history of census taking in Illinois and gives tables and a map showing the population by counties in 1818 and 1820. This book contains not only the 1820 state census schedules but also notes comparing all discrepancies between the names as written in the 1818 territorial, the 1820 state, and the 1820 federal censuses. While in most instances these represent merely minor variations in spelling, there are enough marked discrepancies to indicate that all three sets of returns are necessary to compile a correct list of the pioneers of each county. Symbols have been used in both volumes to indicate names appearing in the other two censuses. In making this comparison families were not assumed to be identical unless they appeared as residing in approximately the same vicinities. Similarity of names alone was not considered sufficient unless they were quite distinctive or unless other evidence corroborated the hypothesis. Names appearing in the federal but not in the state census of 1820 are given in the notes. No attempt has been made to compare the number of members ascribed to each family, as the classifications used in the federal census are more detailed than those of the state census, and since it is to be hoped that the 1820 federal census will also be printed before many years.

The editor wishes to thank those who have given so freely of their time, criticisms and the resources of their departments. She wishes to give especial thanks to Professor Theodore C. Pease, the editor-in-chief of this series, and to his staff, Miss Ernestine Jenison, Miss Mildred Eversole and Miss Louese Ramser, without whose exceptional and painstaking accuracy many errors would have slipped into this volume. The coöperation of the assistants, past and present, in the State Archives Division have made this work possible. The successive chief clerks, Mrs. Grace B. Hanson and Miss Jean Carroll, by relieving the editor of many office details have given the opportunity for the concentration necessary; and the typists, especially Mrs. Edith D. Strain and Mrs. Helen J. Hanson, contributed much by their cheerful patience in an exacting task. Both Miss Georgia L. Osborne and her successor, Mr. Paul M. Angle, of the Illinois State Historical Library, have placed their personal knowledge and the resources of their library at her disposal in the freest possible manner.

ALEXANDER COUNTY (Continued)

The federal and state censuses for Alexander County were both taken by John F. Smyth, who certified the state census on November 21 and the federal census on December 1 of 1820. The arrangement of names differs enough to prove that one census was not a copy of the other. Seven names appearing in the state census have been omitted from the federal census, two of which are probably repetitions. There are also minor variations in spelling, and in one case, Joshua Levinston (state census No. 80), the first name is changed to Elisha in the federal census. The county of Alexander was not organized until 1819, so its population statistics for 1818 are included in the census for Union County, taken by David and Jeremiah Brown. Discrepancies in the three enumerations are as follows:

- | | |

In the original manuscript the number 275 was omitted and the correction made at the end of the list by omitting a number for the last name, John Gilmore. In this reproduction the numbering has been corrected from this point on.

BOND COUNTY (Continued)

John Russell took both censuses for 1820, certifying the state census on the second and the federal census on the sixteenth of December. The state census for 1818 was taken by Martin Jones and dated May 14.

George W. Meguire, a "foreigner not naturalized," between the ages of 16 and 26, and with no family, is given in the federal census as residing between Andrew Bowman (96) and Burd E. Miles (97).

CRAWFORD COUNTY (Continued)

Robert C. Ford took both the state and federal censuses for 1820; the state census is undated; the federal census was certified November 2, 1820. The 1818 census for Crawford County, which then included also the territory set aside as Clark County in 1819, was taken by William Cullom and certified May 15, 1818; an unsigned supplemental census, taken probably by the same man, was dated July 10 to 22, 1818.

The federal census lists four families not listed in the state census:

Jacob Brimberry	8 persons
Between Isaac Brimberry (262) and James Shaw (263).
James Dalsen	10 persons
Between Ephraim Ross (417) and Tiba H. Wolcott (418).
In 1818 census as Dolson.
Joseph Richardson	11 persons
Between Ralph Jeffers (453) and Elisha Crocker (454).
In 1818 census.
John White	3 persons
Between James Johnston (284) and James Watts (286).
In 1818 census.
Total	32 persons

Thirty-six names are listed in the state but not in the federal census for 1820. Of these, however, fifteen families are "free persons of color" of which there is no list in the federal census though the summary indicates a total of seventy-five such persons.

EDWARDS COUNTY (Continued)

Although Edwards County was created in 1815, there are no extant state census returns for that county prior to 1835. In 1818 Edwards County comprised all or parts of the present Jefferson, Wayne, Edwards, Wabash, Lawrence, Richland, Clay, and Marion counties. In 1819 Jefferson and Wayne had been created in the western two-thirds of that region, and are represented in the state census of 1820. For Edwards County itself there is only the summary given here. The federal census of 1820 lists 571 names of heads of families, and these are listed here for the sake of completeness in the list of names of Illinois pioneers of that date. Since this is a compilation of state and not of federal census returns the accompanying statistics await publication in United States Bureau of the Census compilations.

FRANKLIN COUNTY (Continued)

The 1818 census taken by John Browning was certified July 11. John Ewing took both censuses for 1820, the federal census having been certified by him on December 22, and the state census approved by the county commissioners at their December term.

Both censuses for 1820 list 292 families, but of these each census lists three families not mentioned by the other. Those listed in the state census only are:

- 4 Dye, Randle
- 5 Owens, Sary
- 239 Deratt, Louis

Those listed in the federal census only are:

Baker, Benjamin

A family of two residing next to William Baker (279). In the state census the total for William Baker is the same as that for both Benjamin and William Baker in the federal census.

Maddox, John P.

A family of five. Data added in a note at the end of the list.

Youngblood, Isaiah

Family of three residing next to Kinchen Odum (112) and William Baker (279).

Discrepancies are as follows:

The census returns for Gallatin County were taken by three men—William McCoy took the two 1818 censuses, Otho Davenport the state census for 1820, and Richard T. Jones the federal census for 1820. There are wider discrepancies between the census tables for Gallatin than for any other county, so much so that it is impossible to accept any of the figures found as the accurate enumeration of the population for either 1818 or 1820. The 1818 census lists 542 families as of May 30; the additional census taken between June 1 and July 28, 1818, adds 74 families, a total of 616 families in Gallatin County in 1818 as against 554 listed in the state census (returned December 1, 1820) and 451 families listed in the federal census (certified January 27, 1821). The state census for 1820 lists 103 more families than the federal census, but the discrepancy is even greater than that as 224 families listed in the state census do not appear in the federal census, and 119 of those in the federal census are not in the state census. Seventy-seven families in the state but not in the federal census are found in 1818 census; 20 of those only in the federal census are in the 1818 census.

The larger population given for 1818 is partly accounted for by the fact that many families are apparently listed more than once in that census, indicating that they were still moving about and not yet located. The discrepancies between the two 1820 censuses would be somewhat reduced also if it could be shown that families with the same surname were always identical. Frequently brothers or several unrelated families residing together more or less temporarily would give in different names as head of the family. Where the size and location of the family seems to correspond definitely this is indicated in the notes, but in many cases such a relationship, though probably existing, cannot be established from such a comparison.

These discrepancies in the tables are due largely to the fact that the population of Gallatin County was more mobile than that of any other county. Shawneetown, its county seat, was the port of entry through which practically all immigrants came into the state and from which the roads led to all the other counties. Families sometimes settled in the county permanently, but more often stayed a short time and then settled elsewhere. Undoubtedly many transients were listed by the census takers as residents.

The following names appear in the federal census but not in the 1820 state census.

CENSUS OF JACKSON COUNTY, 1820
CENSUS

Of the Inhabitants of Jackson County in the State of Illinois, taken in conformity to the Act of Assembly of said state entitled "an act Providing for taking the Census of the state of Illinois," for 1820—Approved March 23, 1819—

I Matthew Duncan of the County of Jackson do solemnly swear, that I will well and truly make a correct enumeration of all persons resident within the County of Jackson to the best of my ability, and return the same to the Secretary of State, on or before the first Monday in December in the year eighteen hundred and twenty.

MATTHEW DUNCAN

Sworn to and subscribed before me the Subscriber one of the Justices of the peace in and for the County of Jackson and state of Illinois this 1st day of August 1820—

JACKSON COUNTY (Continued)

The 1818 census was taken by Conrad Will. It is undated. The state census for 1820 was taken by Matthew Duncan sometime between August 1 and December 1. The federal census for 1820 was taken by Hugh Steel and certified November 29. Two hundred fifty-three families are given in the federal census and 281 families in the state census of 1820. Twenty-one families listed in the federal census are not listed in the state census; five of these families, however, appear in the 1818 census. Forty-nine families listed in the state census are not listed in the federal census; and of these, three families are in the 1818 census. The total discrepancy between the federal and state census is 70 families, 62 families appearing in one census only. Many of those listed in the state census, especially in the latter pages, were single men, presumably transients looking for a permanent location before bringing their families.

The following names are found in the federal census but not the state census:

Bradshaw, Elijah	Holliday, Elizabeth
Crane, James	Owens, Michael
Cravel, Allen	Palmer, Solomon
Cross, Arthur	Pyle, Thos.
*Davis, Hezekiah, Jr.	Russel, John

JEFFERSON COUNTY (Continued)

Jefferson County was a part of Edwards and White counties until 1819. As there are no extant census returns for Edwards County in 1818 no comparison can be made with the 1820 schedules for that county. However, eighteen names found in the 1820 state census for Jefferson County are found in the White County census for 1818. The federal census for Jefferson County was taken by Lewis Watkins and certified November 13, 1820. The state census taken by Oliver Morris is dated August 1, 1820, this date probably being the date on which the enumeration was begun. The state census lists 144 families and the federal census 129 families. Twenty-six families appearing in the state census are omitted from the federal census and 11 families in the federal census are omitted from the state census.

JOHNSON COUNTY (Continued)

Hezekiah West took the 1818 census for Johnson County, certifying the returns on May 26. Joseph Kuykendall took both the state and the federal census for 1820, the federal census evidently being a copy of the state census. Four names were omitted from the federal census, probably due to carelessness in transcribing. They are:

63 McGowen, John
126 Irvin, Caleb

129 Hendry, Abraham
141 Volner, Samuel

One name, Wheeler Bivens, appears twice in the federal census.

Of the 174 families listed in 1818, seventy-five were still in the county in 1820.

The variations in spelling are minor:

MADISON COUNTY (Continued)

Madison County was the largest county of Illinois in 1820, comprising all the territory north of St. Clair County and west of Bond, with the most densely populated part of the state in the present county of Madison, and the rest of its population widely scattered in small settlements reaching as far north as the present Springfield. It is hardly surprising then, to find that the state census taken by Young Wood and the federal census taken by Thomas Reynolds differ considerably. The state census reports a total of 1,414 families with a total population of 8,522, while the federal census reports 2,021 families with a total population of 13,550. However, the federal census figures are undoubtedly padded, three pages with a total of 76 names being repeated with minor variations as to spelling and the population data; many other names appear two or three times and some of these are undoubtedly repetitions; furthermore, where names correspond in the two schedules, the federal census usually shows larger families than the state (6.7 per family in federal—6.03 per family in state). It is probably safe to deduct at least 100 families and 500 persons from the federal census figures for repetitions alone. However, the federal enumerator did visit many localities which were missed by the state enumerator. Among the townships where a large percentage of the population was missed by Wood are: Goshen, Bounty Land, Springfield, Six Mile Prairie, Edwardsville, Ridge Prairie, Greenfield, and Fork Prairie. In other words, he confined himself to the more densely populated regions. Wood, on the other hand, lists 254 names which have not been identified with names in the federal census. Of these, forty appear in the 1818 census. Forty-four names from the 1818 census are found only in the federal census. Except for a small group of names beginning with No. 1354, however, these names are interlarded between those found in both enumerations, indicating that he probably did not visit any localities not visited by Reynolds. Furthermore, Reynolds was evidently more familiar with the names than Wood, who spelled phonetically, and in places where both men visited neighborhoods in somewhat the same order it is nearly always possible to make the names, even though spelled differently or even at first thought different names, coincide. These differences are pointed out in the notes. With these discrepancies it is difficult to estimate the actual population of Madison County for 1820, but it seems likely that it was not over 1,900 families with a total population of about 11,000 to 11,500.

I certify that the foregoing Schedule Containing one thousand five hundred & forty six persons is the whole number of Inhabitation in the County of Monroe State of Illinois, taken agreeably to the act of the General Assembly of said State for taking the Census in the year 1820

PRINCE BRYANT. Commissioner

Monroe County }
November 2nd 1820 }

As the pages do not correspond with the pages of this volume the totals for each page as given in the manuscript have been omitted here and totals only given.

MONROE COUNTY (Continued)

John Moore took the census for Monroe County in 1818 and Prince Bryant took both the state and the federal census for 1820. The state census was certified November 2 and the federal census December 4, 1820.

One name found in the state census for 1820 is not found in the federal census though the family is listed in the 1818 census:

154 Nelson, Thomas

Ninety-six families are listed in the federal but not in the state census for 1820. These are interspersed throughout the list, and as the federal census is otherwise more detailed than the state census the one list is probably not a copy of the other but a new enumeration in spite of the fact that they are dated only a month apart. The state census was perhaps taken in the early autumn before the annual post-harvest immigration. The additional names found in the federal census are as follows:

POPE COUNTY (Continued)

Samuel Omelveny took all three censuses of Pope County. The state census of 1820 is evidently a copy of the federal census, with the data as to ages, etc., condensed into four columns. One family was omitted in copying:

Ezekiel Clay, residing between Isam Clay (7) and Jasper Simmons (8). His family is listed as follows:

- 1 free white male 16-26 yr.
- 4 free white females under 10 yr.
- 1 free white female 16-26 yr.

This name appears in the 1818 census under the spelling Ezekel Clay. Four names appear in the state census which are not in the federal census: Benjn. Peninton (19), Lincey Modlin (63—a repetition of 4?), Asa Gallamon (314) and Job Clevenger (473).

Discrepancies are as follows:

The 1818 census for Randolph County is missing, probably lost in the fire which scorched and partially destroyed the 1818 census for St. Clair County. A one page "return of the additional census," bound out of place in the volume, appears to be a fragment of the supplemental census for Randolph County. James Thompson took both the state and federal census for 1820, certifying the state enumeration on November 27, 1820, and the federal enumeration January 6, 1821. The two lists are not identical, however, the state list containing 541 families and the federal list containing 547 families. Thirty families named in the state census are not found in the federal census, and thirty-six named in the federal census are not found in the state census, in addition to which one name in the federal census is illegible.

Those families appearing only in the federal census are as follows:

Barbo, Silas
 Barrettel, Francis
 Bradley, Joshua
 Cassey, Antoine
 Clark, Robert
 Coddle, William
 Colbert, Harrison
 *Davis, Joshua
 Depue, Mary
 Deruse, Joseph (Appears twice.)

UNION COUNTY (Continued)

The census for Union County for 1818 was taken by David and Jeremiah Brown and is dated April 10, probably the date on which he commenced the work. The federal census for 1820 was taken by William Bartlett and the state census by William Echols, neither giving the month or day on which they were certified. The federal census is arranged in alphabetical order and lists 389 families as compared to 394 listed by the state census. The 1818 census includes also the names of residents of Alexander County, which was set off from Union County in 1819.

The federal census contains the following names not found in the 1820 state census:

Borin, John, Jr.	Gregory, Jacob

WASHINGTON COUNTY (Continued)

The Washington County census, dated June 1, 1818, was taken by John K. Maugham; the federal census, dated December 18, 1820, was taken by Calvin Barns; and the state census, "taken in the month of August 1820," was taken by Harry Wilton. Twenty-eight names appear in the federal census which are not found in the state census:

WAYNE COUNTY (Concluded)

Wayne County was a part of Edwards County until 1819 so the first census returns are those for 1820. Enoch Wilcox took both the state and federal census for 1820, dating both November 28. Aside from minor variations of spelling the only difference between the names is that Benjamin Phillpott, a free white male between the ages of 26 and 45, is given in place of Thomas Bradshaw (124) with his family of ten.

Discrepancies are as follows:
